PRESS RELEASE

A & AS Level Results 2009: Neale-Wade Community College

Students, staff and Governors are again celebrating success in this year's A and AS Level examinations. All year 13 students who completed courses achieved success and just under 50% of A Level examinations were passed with higher grades. This again represents a high achievement, showing how much hard work, effort and support has been demonstrated by students, teachers and parents. The joint partnership working of Neale-Wade Community College and Cromwell Community College as part of the Fenland 16-19 Partnership has again contributed to the successful outcomes for students. Year 12 students have continued to produce pleasing results which will lay the foundation for the future success of A Levels.
